

List 1. ACLVB KU Leuven Works Council East and West Flanders White collar employees

What do we stand for? Our priorities

- > Meal vouchers are a healthy(ier) choice for our employees. The selection offered by the non-profit organization ALMA does not meet the KU Leuven employees' needs, and thus fails as a complete personnel restaurant.
- > Wouldn't the mobility policy benefit from a commute / cycling allowance, rather than providing the so-called "(E)2WD" bike, that doesn't answer everyone's needs and are often defective?
- > For years, the work load has been increasing (with this corona pandemic as dreary peak). ACLVB KU Leuven keeps demanding the correct measures and correct wages and overtime or Sunday work time compensations (also for academic personnel!).
- > ACLVB KU Leuven has been insisting repeatedly – without any avail - during these corona situations on granting the fiscally interesting telework fee to cover the extra costs in working at home.
- > ACLVB KU Leuven urges specifically for the ATP since 2012 to review the harsh, and sometimes unjust OFD (organization and function design) reality, because of which people are pushed into boxes, and can never advance in their career. OFD 2.0 still has a very long way to go.
- > ACLVB KU Leuven team (45 candidates and a secretary, amongst whom 4 lawyers) support colleagues in need in word and deeds.

Ilse Roelandt

Ondernemingsraad Oost- en West-Vlaanderen - plaats 1

Works Council East and West Flanders (first place)

CPBW Oost- en West-Vlaanderen - plaats 1

The Committee for Prevention and Protection at Work East and West Flanders (first place)

My name is Ilse Roelandt, I am married and mother of 2 teenage sons. I live in the rural and quiet town Kruishoutem.

I work at the International Support Services of the Ghent Technology Campus.

Until recently I was secretary of a harmony, but I am now looking for a new challenge in my spare time. Supporting our sons, one who plays soccer, and the other who is a horse rider, fills a large part of our weekends. As in all families, where both parents work, it is compromising to get everything done.

This is the second time that I have run for the social elections. I hope to be re-elected as a union representative so that I can offer a listening ear to colleagues with all their questions and concerns.

I am not a woman with the loudest voice and the greatest deeds, but I still hope to be able to contribute to the social dialogue and to be a sounding board for colleagues.
